HEARS SAD NEWS OF ACCIDENT TO MOTHER

O. S. French is in receipt of news from Portland regarding the accident befalling his mother who was injured while alighting from a street car in the Oregon city last week in May. She is now in the North Pacific sanitarium of that city while suffering severely from her injuries.

Although none of the larger houses were broken the advanced years of Mrs. French make her injuries all the more serious with the result that her condition is still looked upon as precarious. HUTTON & CO. SAY:

NEW YORK, June 16.—Early depression in today's stock market was the result of early published reports asserting that the negotiations in progress in Paris for the listing of Steel Common had come to an abrupt end and that the security would not be listed there. Steel common was sold in heavy volume by professionals and these sales were absorbed by influential interests who were cognizant of the fact that negotiations would surely be filled with stop loss orders which resulted in some sharp declines in the first hour. Later dealings proved that the buying was better than the selling on the declines. The close was strong with bullish sentiment somewhat restored.

WIFELY PRIDE.

There is no telling what quaint turns wifely pride and devotion may take. Sir Melville Beachcroft, while waiting in a tenement house for the occupants of the first floor to admit him, chanced to overhear two women conversing on the stairs.

One remarked that her husband always wore a clean shirt every Sunday morning.

"Well, now," responded the other, "I never care about Sundays, but I always do see that he has a clean shirt Saturday afternoon, 'cos that's the time he is generally drinking, and when he does take 'em coat off to fight I do like to know 'e looks nice and clean."—M. A. P.

WILL WATCH FOR ECLIPSE.

Those interested in the signs of the zodiac will be out with smoked glasses and strong lenses this afternoon. After the hour of five has arrived an eclipse of the sun has been promised with the additional interesting assurance that it will be visible here.

Dolls Came from China.

It is interesting to the children to know that the first doll came from China; that is, the first doll that could move its arms and legs. Up to that time the children had only dolls made of wood and leather, with sometimes a wax head. At first the wax was put on with a brush, but one day a workman dropped his thumb into a pot of melted wax, and when it came out covered with the material he immediately began to dip his dolls. The great doll industry is carried on in the Thuringian Mountains.

Consequences of a Profession.

"I see where a young man some where married his mother's cook." "That was a bad move—very." "Why not?" "Because she will always want to handle the dough."

For the Cozy Corner.

An elderly man from the country, intent on purchasing some furniture, proceeded to the city to put his skill for bargaining to the test. On entering an "old curiosity" shop he found himself confronted by the proprietor. After turning over the stock the old man purchased a chair. A few days later the purchaser returned to the shop again with the chair in about half a dozen pieces. The proprietor looked at them very gravely and examined them all over, then suddenly exclaimed: "Ah, my friend, I see what is the matter; somebody has been sitting on it."—T. H. H.

Mother of 200.

The veterinary surgeon paused in his lecture to display an aged cat in a basket lined with pink flannel. "Gentlemen," he said, "this cat holds, so far as I know, the maternity record. She is 18 years old and she is the mother of 200 kittens."

"I know of many cases of litters of 12 or 14 that have brought 100 and even 125 little ones into the world, but there is no other case recorded of a feline mother of 200."

He patted the aged animal's head. "You splendid old thing," he said, "I wish I could introduce you to the public."

Queen Takes Fencing Lesson.

Her majesty Queen Alexandra has lately conceived a great liking for fencing, and is now taking lessons from one of the best-known fencing masters in the country, says The Times. The master in question was formerly instructor to one of the regiments of household cavalry, and boasts of having trained more first-class swordsmen than any other man in Europe. He describes her majesty as being a "born fencer," and as one who, had she taken up the art earlier in life, would have achieved great prominence in it.

Matchmakers in Dilemma.

Belgian maidens have awakened belatedly to the danger of two important events clashing this year. The Spinners' Matrimonial club has its annual banquet, to which eligible bachelors are invited, fixed for June 7 at Ecausse-le-Val, in Hainaut. At this banquet the chief business is arranging marriages.

It now appears that June 7 is the date fixed for the provincial elections; but the president of the spinners' club has already pointed out to the local deputy that the latter date must be changed, and if he fails she will petition the government to get the date of the elections altered.

The matter is regarded seriously by the club, as voting in Belgium is compulsory for everybody, including eligible bachelors.

At a recent dinner in London the conversation turned to the subject of lynching in the United States. It was the general opinion that a large percentage of Americans met death at the end of a rope. Finally the hostess turned to an American who had taken no part in the conversation and said:

"You, sir, must have often seen these affairs."

"Yes," he replied, "we take a kind of municipal pride in seeing which city can show the greatest number of lynchings yearly."

"Oh, do tell us about a lynching you have seen yourself," broke in half a dozen voices at once.

"The night before I sailed for England," said the American, "I was giving a dinner at a hotel to a party of intimate friends when a colored waiter spilled a plate of soup over the gown of a lady at an adjoining table. The gown was utterly ruined, and the gentleman of her party at once seized the waiter, tied a rope around his neck and at a signal from the injured lady swung him into the air."

"Horrible!" said the hostess with a shudder. "And did you actually see this yourself?"

"Well, no," admitted the American, apologetically. "Just at that moment I happened to be down stairs killing the chef for putting mustard in the blanc mange."—The Hiss.
